

Morningstar Features SKBA Capital Management’s Baywood SociallyResponsible Fund

In addition to the recent praise from Barron’s, Morningstar recently wrote a great piece which again highlighted SKBA’s Baywood SociallyResponsible Fund as a strong-performing ESG fund based on total return in 2022. The article linked below was written by Leslie Norton, dated January 12, 2023.

The article discusses the wide dispersion of returns amongst ESG and non-ESG strategies in a very difficult investing environment. The article cites that the Morningstar US Sustainability Index declined 18.9%, yet, the Baywood SociallyResponsible Fund was cited as an outperforming Large Cap ESG fund being down only 0.72% in the same time period.

SKBA’s Director of Institutional Portfolio Management, Matthew Segura, was quoted in the article: “The fund avoids companies with high ESG risk, as well as overvalued companies. It sidestepped some of the worst performers ‘by focusing on governance, which we believe is a leading indicator of how companies act on social and environmental matters.’”

The article further states: “The fund also looks for companies with improving ESG profiles, in addition to traditional metrics that show a company is unloved versus its peers, such as yield and market cap/revenue.”

For over three decades, we have consistently applied our value investment philosophy even as market cycles and fads come and go. As a result, our mutual funds have shown strong performance in difficult market conditions, while also producing competitive returns across the full market cycle.

“We believe we’re at a very long unwinding of the asset bubble created by the Fed’s 10 years of a zero-rate policy,” said Mr. Segura. “Rationality is only beginning to be restored to investment decision-making.”

We would like to thank our clients, shareholders and partners for your dedication. We are proud of the work we do for you and we remain committed to our Active Value investing approach.
