

SKBA Capital Management's Baywood SociallyResponsible Fund Featured in Barron's

Barron's recently wrote a great piece which highlighted SKBA's Baywood SociallyResponsible Fund. The article linked below was written by Lauren Foster, dated November 17, 2022.

The article discusses how so many ESG funds are struggling this year due to their concentrated exposure to highly valued technology companies and limited exposure to critical parts of the overall economy.

We have always believed that socially responsible, ESG or sustainable funds were sorely lacking in diversification as over 90% (according to Morningstar) are classified as growth or core. It is one of the reasons we have been managing this strategy for over 20 years, as our clients recognize the importance of diversifying their ESG portfolios with a value investment strategy.

SKBA's President and Director of Research, Josh Rothé, was quoted in the article saying "We are always looking for companies that are unduly beat up," which is somewhat of a mantra here at SKBA Capital Management. For over three decades, we have consistently applied our value investment philosophy even as market cycles and fads come and go. As a result, our strategies have tended to outperform during major market corrections in the past as the companies with the highest valuations tend to fall the most, while also producing competitive returns across the full market cycle. Given that the market has preferred a very narrow set of growth stocks for over a decade, up until last year, we would not be surprised if this turn in the market lasts for a sustained period of time.

We would like to thank our clients, shareholders and partners for your dedication. We are proud of the work we do for you and we remain committed to our Active Value investing approach.
