Investment Philosophy

SKBA believes stock prices routinely overshoot true changes in the underlying fundamentals of a company, both on the upside and downside, due to excessive pessimism or exuberant optimism. The firm believes insightful proprietary research conducted within a consistent process provides the best opportunity for investment returns and that inexpensive securities will outperform the overall market in the long-run.

Our Approach

We begin with a universe of equity securities traded on a major US Exchange with a market capitalization generally greater than $2 billion. Our initial valuation framework evaluates the Relative Market Capitalization to Revenues ("RMCR") of each company in relation to the S&P 500 and to that company's history. Companies that pass the RMCR valuation framework provide us with a diverse group of investment ideas, from which to begin our research process.

We then determine a company's earnings power – its long-term ability to generate profit for reinvestment or distribution to shareholders. Our research process determines if an investment offers sufficient return potential. We focus on factors such as balance sheet and income statement improvement, competitive position, industry prospects, and management's alignment with shareholders' interests.
